

CONTRIBUTORS

Abdul Rezar Manam is a dedicated and research-driven PhD candidate in Political Science at Universiti Utara Malaysia (UUM). Deeply focused on Malaysian political studies, his research explores themes such as governance, electoral behaviour, institutional trust and public integrity within the Malaysian context. He is passionate about examining the dynamics of Malaysia's political landscape, particularly in relation to democratic development, political participation and policy impact. With a solid foundation in political theory and qualitative research, he aims to contribute meaningful insights to the academic community and policy discourse that supports Malaysia's nation-building agenda and democratic resilience.

Abu Hanifah Haris is an associate professor and head of the Department of History, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, Universiti Malaya (UM). He holds a PhD from the Department of History, UM and a B.Ed. from the Department of History, Universiti Pendidikan Sultan Idris (UPSI). His areas of expertise are Middle Eastern history and Islamic history in Malaysia.

Amer Fawwaz Mohamad Yasid currently serves as a senior lecturer at the Faculty of Administrative Science and Policy Studies, Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM). His research mainly focuses on strategic studies, security studies and international relations, including drug trafficking issues in Southeast Asia. He has contributed to various academic publications, including studies on maritime cooperation in the Straits of Malacca, drug trafficking from Thailand's Golden Triangle region, Sarawak-Kalimantan border security and issues related with Malaysia's national security.

Aminah Mohsin is a scholar and lecturer at Universiti Teknologi Malaysia (UTM). She specialises in land administration and development, particularly in areas such as waqf development and strata title governance. She has contributed to various research projects and publications related to property management, sustainability and legal frameworks in Malaysia.

Anita Dee Kaney recently graduated from Universiti Sains Malaysia (USM) with a PhD in social work. Her work history includes crisis counselling and psychiatric social work. She currently works as a clinical social worker at a family medicine practice in South Carolina, USA. Her research interests include child marriage, refugees, refugee rights and Rohingya refugees.

Audrey Kim Lan Siah is a senior lecturer, Director of Honours/PGDip and Deputy Director of postgraduate studies at Monash University Malaysia. Her principal areas of interest are applied economics and experimental economics. She has supervised Honours and PhD students in these areas. Her articles have been published in Management Science, PLoS ONE, Personality and Individual Differences, Journal of the Asia Pacific Economy and many other journals.

YBhg. Datuk Professor Dr. Azlinda Azman obtained her Doctor of Social Work from New York University. She has served as professor, dean of the School of Social Sciences, and deputy vice-chancellor at USM. Her research interests include poverty, HIV/AIDS and social policy. She currently serves as the director general for the Department of Higher Education in Malaysia.

Ch'ng Xin Ying is an assistant professor of Music and lectures at the Institute of Music in UCSI University, Kuala Lumpur, in Western art music history and writing. Her research interests lie in the way concepts of nationalism found in music can inform complex issues of identity, especially in relation to race, nation and gender. Her most recent project includes an examination of broadcasting and programming as colonial projects of the Malaya Broadcasting Corporation during the early to mid-20th century in British Malaya and Singapore.

Intan Hashimah Mohd Hashim is a professor of psychology at the School of Social Sciences, USM. She holds a PhD in psychology from the University of Warwick, United Kingdom. Her research interests lie in the areas of positive and social psychology, with a particular focus on how relationships contribute to well-being and happiness.

Kamal Solhaimi Fadzil is an anthropologist and the current head of the Department of Anthropology and Sociology at the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, UM. He is an expert in orang asli communities and focuses his research on culture, society and community development. Kamal is passionate about helping communities through participatory research and social projects.

Khoo Suet Leng is an associate professor in the Development Planning and Management Section, School of Social Sciences, USM. She holds a PhD from the University of Melbourne, and a Master of Science (Urban & Regional Planning) and BA (Geography)(Hons) from USM. Her research interests include creative cities, urban heritage conservation and housing affairs. She is also a professional and registered town planner with the Malaysian Board of Town Planners and the Malaysian Institute of Planners.

Lai Wei Sieng is a senior lecturer at the Faculty of Economics and Management, Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (UKM). He holds a PhD and a Master of Economics from UKM. His research interests include economic development, international trade and human capital.

Marsila Ahmad is an experienced librarian with over 16 years in the field. She started her career at the National Library of Malaysia, serving for nearly 13 years in various departments, including the collection development and the national centre for Malay manuscripts. She then worked at the Institute for Rural Advancement (INFRA) library for three years before joining the Malaysian Social Institute. She plays a key role in strengthening access to reference resources and training, supporting research initiatives, and lifelong learning. She is an expert in collection management and information literacy.

Mashitah Mohd Udin is an academician at the College of Law, Government and International Studies (COLGIS), UUM. Her expertise lies in political science, with research focusing on Malaysian politics, electoral studies, governance, and the relationship between law and politics. She has published widely, including notable works such as “Tun Dr Mahathir’s Leadership Patterns and the Success Story of Malaysia” and a case study on integrity erosion among education personnel in Perlis. Dr. Mashitah teaches courses related to political theory, Malaysian government, and political economy. Her work continues to influence public discourse and academic inquiry in the fields of politics, leadership and integrity studies.

Md Azalanshah Md Syed is an associate professor at the Department of Media and Communication Studies, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, UM. His research focuses on Asian popular culture, especially soap operas, TV dramas, gender issues and Malay studies. He is also passionate about screen production, with a special interest in documentary filmmaking and pre-production research.

Mohamad Azal Fikry Ali is a senior lecturer in the Programme of Town and Regional Planning, Department of Built Environment Studies and Technology, UiTM (Perak Branch). He holds a PhD in Town and Regional Planning from UTM. His research interests include rural and regional planning, small town functionality studies and rural tourism. He is also involved in rural policymaking, such as Dasar Pembangunan Luar Bandar 2030, and research funded by NAPREC on frameworks to empower Felda land development towards sustainability and the highest and best use approach in 2022.

Mohamad Muzammil Mohamad Noor is an independent researcher at the Association of Malaysian Researchers and Social Services (AMRASS), Kedah, Malaysia. He completed the book review published in the present issue of Kajian Malaysia when he was a senior lecturer in the History Section, School of Distance Education, USM. He obtained his PhD in History of Thought from UM. His research interests include the history of political thought, Malaysian and Indonesian history, as well as comparative history. He is also interested in the study of Persons with Disabilities (PWD) and the homeless.

Mohamad Nor Asyraf Zulkfli is an undergraduate student at the Faculty of Economics and Management, UKM. He graduated in 2021.

Mohd Shahril Yaakob is an administrative and diplomatic officer who has served in the Malaysian public service since 2009. He began his career at the Ministry of Health of Malaysia and is currently attached to the Selangor State Secretary's Office, overseeing rural development at the Hulu Langat District and Land Office. Previously, he served for nine years at the Gombak District and Land Office, focusing on land administration. He holds a Master's degree in land administration and development from UTM, and brings with him a wealth of experience in both administrative governance and land management at the district level.

Muhamad Asri Abdullah Kamar is a senior lecturer in the Programme of Town and Regional Planning, Department of Built Environment Studies and Technology, Faculty of Architecture, Planning and Surveying, UiTM (Perak Branch). He holds both a PhD in Urban Planning and Management as well as a Master of Science (Housing) from USM. His research interests include rural, small-town, tourism and recreation studies. He is also interested in housing and elderly people studies.

Nisrin Ishak is a senior academic and research leader at Universiti Poly-Tech Malaysia, specialising in social co-creation, digital business and qualitative research. Her impactful scholarship, leadership roles, and editorial contributions reflect a dynamic commitment to advancing knowledge, education and innovation in business and management sciences.

Ngo Sheau-Shi is a lecturer at the School of Communication, USM. She obtained her PhD in cinema studies from La Trobe University in 2010. As a researcher grounded in cultural studies and situated within the school of critical inquiry across gender, class, and ethnicity, her work interrogates the construction of technologised subjectivities in the media. She explores how these subjectivities mediate the exercise of the social imaginary within politically and socially hierarchical structures, critically attending to power differentials shaped by intersecting axes of domination and resistance.

Noorasiah Sulaiman is an associate professor at the Faculty of Economics and Management, UKM. She holds a PhD in economics from Universiti Putra Malaysia and a Master's from Saitama University in Japan. Her research areas are economic development, human capital and policy studies.

Noor Azam Haji Othman is a professor of English language and linguistics at Universiti Brunei Darussalam. He is currently acting director of the Institute of Asian Studies, having previously been Dean of Arts and Social Sciences (2019) and Dean of Sultan Hassanah Bolkiah Institute of Education (2022). He has taught at the English studies and media studies programmes at both undergraduate and graduate levels. His research interests are in the field of sociolinguistics, multilingual societies and indigenous languages, specifically focusing on the interactions between language and education policies and state policies. He has published widely on language, identity and educational issues.

Noraini Zulikifli@ Zulkafli is a senior lecturer and the head of the Department of International Relations, Security, and Law at the Universiti Pertahanan Nasional Malaysia. Her academic focus includes international relations, maritime studies and security studies-related fields. She has also contributed to various research publications, including on topics like maritime cooperation in the Straits of Malacca and the OPEC oil crisis.

Nur Berahim is a lecturer at UTM, specialising in land administration and urban development. She has contributed to various research projects, including studies on housing, land resources management and asset governance.

Nur Ashikin Sobri is a teacher at Pusat Tuisyen Transformasi Minda. She holds a Master of Social Science (Psychology) with a specialisation in adolescent well-being. Her research interests include children's learning processes, adolescent cognitive and emotional development, as well as affective pedagogical strategies for engaging teenage learners. She is particularly interested in the intersection between educational methods and youth mental well-being in informal learning environments.

Puteh Noraihan is a scholar of Asian Studies, currently a senior lecturer at the School of Liberal Studies (CITRA), UKM. Her expertise lies particularly in Malaysian history and ASEAN studies. Within her school, Puteh Noraihan is also responsible for coordinating UKMSHAPE. Her research interests are focused on the intricate tapestry of ASEAN studies, with a special emphasis on the nuances of Malaysian history. A testament to her scholarly contributions, she has authored several books exploring historical narratives and Malaysian economic policy. Furthermore, her dedication to academic collaboration extends internationally, as evidenced by her established research connections with esteemed institutions such as the University of Leicester in the United Kingdom.

Rachel Chan Suet Kay is a sociologist and a research fellow at the Institute of Ethnic Studies (KITA), UKM. She specialises in cultural sociology, with a current focus on ethnicity and subculture, having written on topics ranging from Chinese cultural heritage to Japanese and Malaysian manga. She received her PhD in sociology and MA in sociology by research from UM, and a BSc (Hons) in sociology and a diploma in economics from the University of London.

Salinayanti Salim is a lecturer at the Faculty of Language and Communication, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak. She holds a PhD in professional communication and the media, a Master of Arts in applied linguistics, and a Bachelor's degree in teaching English as a second language (TESL). Her research interests include media and religion, Islamic communication, identity and representation, as well as youth engagement and digital literacy. She is also interested in issues related to the narrative and socialisation of racial and religious identities in Malaysia.

Distinguished Professor Datuk Dr. Shamsul Amri Baharuddin, FASc (aka Shamsul A.B.), a social anthropologist, is the Founding Director of KITA, UKM, a fellow of the Academy of Science Malaysia, and the UNESCO Chair at UKM on "Social Practices in Intercultural Communication and Social Cohesion." For details of his academic activism see the website: <<http://ukm.academia.edu/ShamsulAB>>

Sharon Koh is the director of Graduate Research Programmes and a senior lecturer at the School of Business, Monash University Malaysia. She holds a PhD in economics, and her research centres on economic policy, vulnerability, and social equity. Adopting an interdisciplinary approach, her work integrates economics with insights from other fields to better understand complex societal issues. Sharon is particularly interested in developing inclusive and context-sensitive policy responses that support marginalised communities.

Sharifah Syahirah Sy Shiekh is a vice chancellor at the University Poly-Tech Malaysia and a former dean of its Institute of Graduate Studies. Her expertise focuses on the fields of gender, politics, and governance. She is actively engaged in various national and international organisations, including the National Council of Women's Organization and the Malaysian Social Science Association. She is known for her eloquent representation of Malaysian Civil Society Organizations in regional and global forums. As a prolific researcher, she has made significant academic contributions through her publications in respected journals and book chapters.

Shazlin Amir Hamzah is a senior lecturer and research fellow at KITA, UKM. With a background in communication and ethnic studies, her research focuses on nation branding, interethnic relations, and the cultural impact of music in Malaysia. She is the author of several books, book chapters and numerous academic articles, and has presented her work at both national and international conferences. Shazlin is recognised for her contributions to understanding Malaysian identity and social cohesion through the lens of media and music.

Siti Rosmani Md Zin@Zakaria is a dedicated anatomy lecturer with over 15 years of experience in both teaching and research. Her academic journey began in 2009 at UM, where she taught and mentored students in the field of anatomy. Since 2024, Siti has continued her passion for education as an anatomy lecturer at USM, aiming to shape the next generation of healthcare professionals. Her research focuses on clinical anatomy and the potential toxicity of chemicals and natural products, including plants, on the endocrine and reproductive systems, prenatal development and fertility.

Taufik Mohammad is an assistant professor in the Department of Psychology, Kulliyah of Islamic Revealed Knowledge and Human Sciences, International Islamic University of Malaysia. He holds a PhD and a Master's degree in social work from USM. His primary research interests include adolescents, juvenile delinquency, and adolescent sexual health. He is also interested in health behaviours and beliefs.

Woo Kuan Heong is a senior lecturer in the political science section at the School of Social Sciences, USM. She holds a PhD and a Master of Public Administration, both from USM. Her research interests include public administration, public employment, and representative bureaucracy. She also explores Malaysia's political landscape, focusing on inclusive governance. Her work contributes to the understanding of the politics of public personnel recruitment in Malaysia's multiracial society, as well as public governance dynamics, particularly in the areas of affordable housing and urban park administration and policy.