

CONTRIBUTORS

Ain Syafia Qutreenie Alwi is a special education teacher under the Ministry of Education Malaysia. She holds a Master's degree in education from Universiti Pendidikan Sultan Idris (UPSI). Her professional experience includes serving as a research assistant in projects related to special education and instructional innovation. Her research interests focus on the development of career skills and the integration of technology to enhance learning among students with special educational needs. She has contributed to the field through the publication of several academic papers and journal articles on special education.

Amna Khalid is a PhD candidate in international relations at the School of International Studies, Universiti Utara Malaysia (UUM). Before starting her PhD, she worked as an international relations lecturer at Lahore Garrison University, Pakistan. Currently, she is exploring the discourse surrounding the Indo-Pacific region.

Amsalib Pisali is a lecturer in the Department of Performing Arts, Faculty of Music and Performing Arts, UPSI. He holds a Master of Creative Arts from Universiti Malaysia Sabah (UMS) and is currently pursuing his PhD in theatre and drama at UPSI. His research interests focus on performance studies, with particular attention to ritual and cultural performance within indigenous communities. His work explores the intersections of traditional belief systems, performativity and symbolic interaction in contemporary performance contexts.

Anis Shaari is a lecturer at the School of Educational Studies, Universiti Sains Malaysia (USM). She holds a PhD in educational psychology from USM. Her research explores the intersection of educational psychology and English as a second language (ESL), with particular interests in teacher identity formation and global citizenship education (GCED) in language classrooms. She is also actively involved in initiatives that promote innovative, reflective and psychologically informed teaching and learning practices.

Ardzulyna Anal is a senior lecturer at the Faculty of Human Development, UPSI. Her doctorate in philosophy with a focus on diverse needs was obtained from USM. She has an experience in teaching students with learning disabilities. Her research focuses on dyslexia, dyscalculia, career skills, and teaching practices, and she has published several indexed articles in these areas.

A Rahman Tang Abdullah is an associate professor at the history Programme, Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, UMS. He holds a PhD in History and a Master's (MA) in Southeast Asian studies from the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), University of London. His research interests include the history and historiography of Johor, water issues between Malaysia and Singapore, the Malay economy during the colonial period, Islamic law in Kedah before colonial rule, legal history on the formation of Malaysia, and Arab Hadramis in Malaysia.

Asmiaty Amat is a Professor at The Centre for the Promotion of Knowledge and Language Learning, UMS. She graduated with a Bachelor of Malay Literature from Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (UKM) and obtained her doctorate in Malay Studies from the Academy of Malay Studies, Universiti Malaya (UM). Her area of expertise is mainly on the literary criticism of the literary works in Sabah and Sarawak. She is also involved in researches regarding the custom and culture of the indigenous peoples including folklore.

Bakri Mat is an associate professor and research fellow at the Asian Institute of International Affairs and Diplomacy, UUM. His academic pursuits span traditional and non-traditional security sectors, culminating in varied research, consultations, and publications.

Chong Wei Ying is an associate professor at the School of Management and Marketing, Taylor's University, Malaysia. She holds a PhD from UM. Her research focuses on startup valuation, entrepreneurial ecosystems, family business, and financial behaviour, emphasising intangible resources, shared identities, and innovation in shaping entrepreneurial success. She leads initiatives advancing entrepreneurial learning, social well-being, and the resilience of small and family enterprises, advocating inclusive, collaborative approaches that bridge academia and practice to promote equity and innovation.

Chow Poh Ling (Mavis) is an assistant professor and Dean of the Faculty of Accountancy, Finance and Business at Tunku Abdul Rahman University of Management and Technology (TAR UMT). She leads academic programmes, strategic planning, research, and external collaborations, ensuring compliance with accreditation standards. Beyond TAR UMT, she serves as a co-opted member of MICPA's Education Training Committee (2022–2025), Exco Member of the ASEAN Education Accounting Workgroup, and CIMA Academic Champion (2023–2026). With over 13 years of industry experience across finance, auditing, and credit control, her research focuses on quality education, soft skills enhancement, and social sustainability.

Dexter Sigan John is a lecturer at the Faculty of Education, Language and Communication, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak (UNIMAS). He was previously attached to the Malaysian Prison Department under the Ministry of Home Affairs, teaching English in a juvenile school. Subsequently, he served with the Ministry of Education Malaysia, educating students in secondary school prior to his position in the university. His research interest lies in the area of pedagogy, andragogy, sociolinguistics, ESL writing, and technical communication.

Ferooze Ali is a senior lecturer at the Faculty of Law and International Relations, Universiti Sultan Zainal Abidin (UniSZA). He obtained his Bachelor of Commerce from the University of Tasmania, and holds a Master of Arts in international and diplomatic studies as well as a PhD in international relations (2022) from USM. His research interests include international faith-based humanitarian assistance, small-state mediation, and the geopolitics of the broader Middle East.

Haddi @ Junaidi Kussin is a lecturer at the Faculty of Languages and Communication, UPSI. He holds a Master of Education in the Teaching of English as a Second Language from UPSI. His research interests include language policy, language learning strategies, culture and education, and teacher training. He is particularly interested in exploring how educational policies and classroom practices shape English language teaching and learning in multilingual contexts. His work reflects a strong commitment to improving language education and teacher professional development in Malaysia.

Ho Kee Chye is a senior lecturer in the Department of Chinese Studies, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, UM, as well as the deputy director of the Malaysian Chinese Research Centre (MCRC) at UM. He holds a PhD from the University of Xiamen and a Master of Arts from UM. His research interests include the Malaysian Chinese identity, Chinese cultural and organisations, the left-wing movement in Malaysia and the Cold War history in Asia.

Jasman Bandar is a senior lecturer who teaches the subject of creative writing at the Centre for the Promotion of Knowledge and Language Learning, Labuan International Campus (UMSKAL). He holds a PhD degree in cultural studies from UMS. His research interests focus on the study of literature and culture in Sabah.

Juna Liao is an associate professor in anthropology and sociology in the Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, UNIMAS. She holds a PhD from Monash University, Australia. Her areas of expertise include the sociology of education, medical anthropology, and environmental management. She has published on topics relating to indigenous education, sociology of disease, and ethnomedicine. She is a research fellow in the Institute of Borneo Studies, UNIMAS.

Khoong Tai Wai is an associate professor and deputy dean (research and development) in the Faculty of Accountancy, Finance and Business, TAR UMT. He holds a PhD from the UKM. His research interests include financial literacy-planning policies and business analytics. He is also interested in Islamic finance, sustainability, and environmental, social, and governance (ESG) studies. His work aims to bridge academic theory with real-world business and socioeconomic challenges. Besides, he is an HRD Corp-accredited trainer and an MFPC examiner.

K S Balakrishnan is a former senior lecturer at the Department of International and Strategic Studies, UM. He also served in positions such as head of department and coordinator of the postgraduate program. He has received several international scholarships and grants from a few developed countries throughout his career in universities and think tanks, and has made presentations in numerous conferences. Currently, he is in strategic advisory roles for think tanks and the private sector.

Lena Farida Hussain Chin is the deputy dean (research and innovation) at the Faculty of Music and Performing Arts, UPSI. A scholar specialising in theatre and drama, she holds academic qualifications from Akademi Seni Budaya dan Warisan Kebangsaan (ASWARA), Universiti Teknologi MARA (UiTM), UM, Roehampton University, and USM. Her research focuses on theatre innovation, Bangsawan heritage preservation, and drama-based pedagogy. She has supervised numerous master's and PhD candidates, published widely in international journals, served as a consultant, and curriculum developer for national arts and education institutions.

Menegaa Paraman obtained her PhD in sociology studies from UM. She has worked at the UM Research Department as a research assistant/coordinator on a few projects. Presently, she is attached to C&G Analytica as research associate and Vivekkam Organization of Malaysia as a central working committee member. In accord with PhD research and expertise, Menegaa underlines the close correlation between dropping out of school, unemployment, behavioural science and social exclusion.

Mohd Nazmi Mohd Khalli is a lecturer in the Academy of Contemporary Islamic Studies at the UiTM branch in Kota Kinabalu, Sabah. He completed his PhD at USM (2025) in the field of Islamic studies in usuluddin, and also a Master's in Islamic studies at UMS (2022). His research interests lie in the areas of Islamic studies related to comparative religion, socio-religious studies, religion and society, and also any related to ethno-religious studies in Borneo.

Muhammad Fawwaz Muhammad Yusoff is deputy dean and associate professor at the Faculty of Quranic and Sunnah Studies, Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia (USIM). He earned a diploma in Quran memorisation and qiraat from Darul Quran Jabatan Kemajuan Islam Malaysia (JAKIM), a BA in Hadith and Islamic studies from the Islamic University of Madinah, an MIRKH from International Islamic University Malaysia (IIUM), and a PhD in theology and religious studies from the University of Glasgow. His research focuses on Qur'anic scholarship, Hadith sciences, and Muslim historiography. He has published widely and serves as Editor-in-Chief of Journal of Ma'ālim al-Qur'ān wa al-Sunnah.

Muslim Imran is the Director of the Asia Middle East Centre for Research and Dialogue, specialising in advancing strategic engagement and geopolitical analysis concerning Asia-Middle East relations. His academic profile includes a PhD in strategic and international studies from UM, where his research examined Malaysian foreign policy towards the Middle East. Complementing this, his earlier studies at the IIUM established an interdisciplinary foundation with a Master's in political science (international relations), a Bachelor's in communications engineering, and a Diploma in business administration, underpinning his expertise in technology, diplomacy, and regional affairs.

Ng Wee Nee was awarded a Master of Arts from UM, a Bachelor of Arts from the Universiti Putra Malaysia (UPM), and a Diploma in Education from the Institute of Teacher Education, Ipoh Campus. She has served in several secondary schools in Perak, Kuala Lumpur and Selangor for the past 21 years and is currently working as a senior assistant (student affairs) in a secondary school in Johor Bahru. Her research interests include humanities, cultural and heritage studies, Chinese society and education.

Noor Ashikin Said is a lecturer in the MPU Department, Xiamen University Malaysia. She holds a PhD in ethnic studies and a Master's Degree in political science, both from UKM. Her research interests include anthropotechnology, ethnic studies, and anthropology at work. She is also interested in the intersections of culture, technology and education, particularly how cultural and technological contexts shape identity, social behaviour and human development.

Norhana Khaled is a lecturer in international relations at the Faculty of Law and International Relations, UniSZA. She holds a PhD from USM and a Master of Social Science in Political Science from UKM. Her research interests and expertise include international relations, Islamic education, Islamic movements and political Islam, international politics and the Muslim world, Muslim women's rights, and Malay politics.

Nur Fatin Nabilah Shahrom is a senior lecturer at the Academy of Contemporary Islamic Studies, UiTM Perlis, Malaysia. Her areas of expertise include the MS 1900 Shariah-based Quality Management System, Islamic administration and halal. She is actively involved in contributing to intellectual discourse and research on the development of Islamic studies, particularly in the context of Islamic-based values in management and administration. Her expertise in Islamic Quality Management Systems encompasses research on integrating quality practices within organisations in line with shariah requirements.

Romzi Ationg is an associate professor in the Center for the Promotion of Knowledge and Language, UMS. He completed his PhD at The Australian National University (2017) in the field of social science, politics and leadership, and Master in Science (humanity and leadership) at UPM (2000). His research interest lies in the area of politic and human development. He is also the chairman of the Association of Malaysian Researchers and Social Services (Sabah branch).

Rosila Bee Mohd Hussain is currently an associate professor at the Department of Anthropology and Sociology, UM. She completed her PhD from the University of Western Australia. Her areas of research interest include social inequality, identity, youth, cross-cultural study and contemporary social issues (social capital, disability studies, gender and social threats).

Roy Anthony Rogers is an associate professor with the Department of Strategic and International Studies, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, UM. His area of specialisation includes international relations. He was formerly Deputy Executive Director (development, research, innovation and internationalization) at the Asia-Europe Institute.

Sharifah S. Ahmad is a senior lecturer in the Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities, UNIMAS. She holds a PhD from Durham University. Her research interests include post-colonialism, textuality and meaning-making, and the formation of the nation-state and nationalism. She has published on topics relating to political sociology, colonial history, and identity, and state formation.

Shazwanis Shukri is a senior lecturer and associate researcher at the Asian Institute of International Affairs and Diplomacy, UUM. She obtained her PhD in politics and international studies from Cardiff University in 2018. Her research interests include security studies, maritime security threats, European security specialising in NATO and the EU, and non-traditional security issues, particularly terrorism and migration.

Siti Arni Basir is a senior lecturer at the Department of Shariah, Economics and Governance, Academy of Islamic Studies, UM. Her areas of expertise include MS 1900 Shariah-based Quality Management System, MS 1500 Halal Standard and ISO 9000 Quality Management System. She is currently researching and writing about themes related to quality management, innovation and halal management. Her research also focuses on the practices of values and ethics in quality management initiatives.

Suraya Sintang is an associate professor in the Center for the Promotion of Knowledge and Language, UMS where she has been a faculty member since 1999. She completed her PhD at UM (2012) in the field of dialogue of civilization, and a Master's in theology and philosophy at UKM (2002). Her research interests lie in the area of civilization and contemporary issues related to the studies of inter-religious relations, socio-religious issues, and ethnic diversity in Borneo. As part of her devoted community engagement at the state level in Sabah, she was given opportunities to serve as Steering Committee for Unity at JPNIN Sabah, co-researcher of Piagam Harmony under IKIM and Research Leader/ Principle Investigator for the consultation of Research Development of a Model of Social Cohesion in Sabah and Sabah (October 2023 to April 2024).

Zaharul Abdullah is a lecturer at the School of Distance Education, USM. Before joining USM, he served as a lecturer in policy studies at Universiti Malaysia Terengganu and as a teaching fellow at UPM. He also worked as a research officer and later as a research associate at the Academy of Professors Malaysia. He holds a PhD in Political Economy of Development from the Institute of Malaysian and International Studies, UKM. His research interests encompass the belt and road initiative, China–Southeast Asia relations, United States–China relations, Japan–China rivalry in Southeast Asia, and the developmental state.

Zaini Othman is a senior research fellow at the Institute of Ethnic Studies (KITA), UKM. He holds a PhD in political science from UKM and a Master's in economic and social studies from the University of Manchester. His research focuses on Malaysian politics, civil society and democratisation, ethnicity and national identity, and the geopolitics of Sabah and East Malaysia. His recent works examine statelessness, borderland societies, subnational diplomacy, and post-GE15 political transitions within Malaysia's evolving democratic landscape.